

CEDAR is a two-year Postgraduate training scheme in the use of hypermedia tools.

In addition to the six training workshops and symposium detailed below the programme also involves an interactive website: <http://cedar.bangor.ac.uk>

Session 1 (Saturday, February 21st 2009, 10:00h-17:00h, Bangor University)

- ◆ Introduction to web-based collaborative research
- ◆ Hypermedia tools for doctoral Humanities research
- ◆ Intellectual property in the digital sphere
- ◆ Multimedia for academic papers (posters and presentations)

Session 2 (Saturday, March 21st 2009, 10:00h-17:00h, Aberystwyth University)

- ◆ Introduction to digital humanities: e.g. corpora, e-publishing, digital project design
- ◆ Engaging with digital multimodality / multimodal text analysis

Session 3 (Saturday, May 9th 2009, 10:00h-17:00h, De Montfort University)

- ◆ Transliteracy: literacy in the digital age
- ◆ Multimedia for creative and academic writing (1): organising creative processes
- ◆ The De Montfort Creativity Assistant

Session 4 (November 2009, Bangor University)

- ◆ Artefacts and archives: using digital tools for revisiting conventional Humanities methodologies (e.g. H-Net, Intute, EEBO, newspaper databases, YouTube)
- ◆ Managing your thoughts and research: mindmapping software

Session 5 (February 2010, Aberystwyth University)

- ◆ Podcasting for humanities research
- ◆ Keeping research diaries (blogs and e-portfolios): Blogosphere, Mahara

Session 6 (May 2010, Bangor University)

- ◆ Multimedia for creative and academic writing (2)
- ◆ Hypertext and hypermedia: e.g. Storyspace, iStories

Final doctoral student symposium (early September 2010, Bangor University)

The workshops are free of charge, and grants may be available of up to £35.00 per person per seminar for travel and/or accommodation costs.

Early registration is strongly advised, as places are severely limited. Priority will be given to students whose research is currently being funded by the AHRC.

For more information contact Dr. Astrid Ensslin at a.ensslin.bangor.ac.uk or Dr. Will Slocombe at wws@aber.ac.uk

Registration forms are available online: <http://cedar.bangor.ac.uk>

